NOON REPORTS.

The Republican Convention.

CHICAGO, June 5 .- In the convention last night the question on the adoption of the majority report in the case of the first district of Illinois resulted aves 384, noes 356. So the majority report was adopted. The question recurring on the adoption of the majority report in the remaining Illinois cases, Logan asked a division of the question, a separate vote on each contested district. The majority report on the 3d district was adopted, yeas 385, nays 353, Logan withdrew his demand for any further divi-ion of the question regarding the remaining Illinois contests. The call of the roll on the 4th dis rict resulted ayes 388, noes 351. The majority report so far as relates to the Illinois contests, was then adopted by a viva voce vote. On motion of Mr. Sewall, of New Jersey, the convention, at 2:20, adjourned to 11 o'clock this morning.

The delegates are steadily assembling, and the galleries are filling rapidly, despite the heavy showers of rain and sultry spite the heavy showers of rain and sultry atmosphere, only partially relieved by occasional thunder. The usual rounds of a planse were given to notable delegates as they entered the ball. Mr. Garfield especially, was received with much enthusiasm, probably because in some contingencies he is considered the possible winning dark horse in the presidential race. The convention was called to order at The convention was called to order at 11:45 a. m., at which time the delegates generally were in their seats, and an immense audience in the galleries and on the Prayer was offered by Rev. John R. Baxter, of Washington.

The contestants from the Illinois districts are in their seats.

The question of the Kansas contestants is now being taken up.

At the end of prayer, the chair stated the At the end of prayer, the chair stated the ques ion, be on the report of the committee on credentials, in the case of Ka sas. Conger briefly explained and sustained the majority report. The Convention agreed to limit the debate on the Kansas case to 40 minutes. Plumb, of Kansas, replied in behalf of the sitting members, and sustaining the minority re ort.

Conkling privately denies emphatically the report published at Baltimore, stating that he had received a letter from Grant requesting him to consult Logan, and, if it is thought best, to withhold his name from presentation to the convention.

Houk, of Tenn., said he did not know which side of the pen ling question he was on and asked that he be allowed to speak two minutes in order to ascertain his own position. [Laughter.]
The chair said that the gentleman must be on one side or the other to entitle him to occupy any of the time allotted to this debate, [Renewed laughter.]

Houk was allowed to proceed and in conclusion he said he would sustain the majority report because there was no minor-ity report, but he did not want to be understood thereby as condemning the action of the Congressional districts in Kansas. The question was then taken by a call of States and the majority report in the Kansas cases was sustained-yeas 476, nays

It was noticeable that in the Kansas case New York cast only 22 in the affir native, so the majority report which admits four Grant men from Kansas was adopted, the committee on credentials holding that they were entitled to seats under the principle of district representation. The failure of the New York Grant men to vote is understood to be caused by a desire to have the majority report sustained, while their votes for it would be inconsistent with their vote in the Llinois cases.

The next case taken up was the contest in the Third district of West Virginia. The committee recommended the revention of the sitting members, who are Blaine Conger explained and supported the majority report.

Clayton moved to substitute the minority report for the majority report, recom-mending the admission of the contestants. Raum insisted the West Virginia cas stood precisely on all fours with the Illinois and Kansas cases, and as the con testants from Illinois and Kansas had been admitted those from West Virginia

Mr. Codman spoke against the report of Mr. Hogans, of West Virginia, and sostained the majority report urging that the contestants failed to prove before the committee that they secured votes of a majority of the delegates to the State Convention and from the Congressional districts.

Mr. Conger stated that the committee were nearly equally divided in this case and rather intimated that he was not himself clear in opinion as to the true merits of the case. The contestants in the case are Sherman men. After considerable cross-firing between the different delegates as to the facts of purely local interest. No doubt the Sherman delegates from West Virginia will be admitted and New York Grant men vote in their favor. Mr. Haymond, of California, said each side claims to be district representatives and the only controperted question is as to whether sitting and contesting delegates were legally chosen representatives of the districts involved. A vote was then taken by a call of the States upon substituting a minority for a majority report and resulted in 417, ayes; 330, noes. So the motion to substitute a minority report was agreed to and the convention voted riva roce to seat contestants. Grant, Sherman and Edmunds men appeared to combine on this affirmative vote. The next case was Utab. It was moved that the debate upon it be limited to thirty minutes. The three hundred and thirty votes for the negative on the West Virginia case is regarded by many as indicating that Blaine's strength in the Convention is at least as great.

Mr. Sharpe moved a resolution that the Convention proceed immediately to ballot for a candidate for President of the United States, (applause). Rejected by over 180

A reli of States was called on motion to substitute a minority for a majority report and thus seat the Utah contestants. Resulting, yeas 426; nays 312. So the minority report was substituted. New York voted 50 ayes; 19 noes. The vote was in no sense a test of the strength of the respective factions, the partisans of the different candilates dividing. The Conven-tion then admitted the Utah contestants.

The report of the Committee on Rules was taken up and the rule of the House of Representatives was recommended, that when a vote of a State is cast it cannot be changed except in case of a numerical error, 'leu minutes is to be allowed for the presentation of each candidate for the Presidency. There is a strong probability of a ballot to-night as the Biaine men want to adjourn to-night, and the Grant men have sprung their effort to ballot immedi-Mr. Sharpe's re-olution to ballot at ately. MIDNIGHT REPORTS.

The Republican Convention.

CHICAGO, June 5 .- Mr. Gartield rising, was greeted with great applause. He inquired of Mr. Sharpe, of New York, who made the minority report from the com-mittee on rules and order of business, how much time he desired for the discussion of the said report.

Mr. Sharpe replied that he did not design calls. After some reference to the public life of his proposed nominee, he presented for nomination to the presidency James G. Blyine. The mention of his name was received with grand demonstrations of applause among the audience both in galleries and on the fleor. The nominating speech was not inspiring in its delivery and the demonstration of applause which to detain the convention unnecessarily; but he could tell better what his course would be after Mr. Garfield had stated his own motion.

Mr. Garfield then moved the adoption of the majority report, and hoped any proposed amendment would be presented efore the debate should begin. Both maority and minority reports were read for nformation.

The chair stated the question to be on the motion of Mr. Garfield to adopt the majority report.

Mr. Sharpe offered the following resolu-

Resolved, That this convention will proceed at once to ballot for a candidate for President of the United States, and that one speech of 15 minutes shall be allowed for the presentation of each candidate, and one speech of 10 minutes to the second of each nomination, and that after such nominations are made, a bailet shall be aken by call of the roll of States.

Mr. Garfield raised the point of order that under an order of the convention, the report of the committee on rules was be-fore the body, and Mr. Sharpe's resolution being for proceeding to an entirely different business, was not in order. The chair ruled Mr. Sharpe's motion in order. A vote was ordered by a call of the States. This motion was at first a surprise, coming from anti-Blaine men. Mr. Sharpe modified the resolution so as to provide that after nominating speeches shall have been made, ballots for Presidential nominees shall be taken by a call of the roll of

After some discussion, the chair stated the question to be upon the substitution of Sharpe's resolution for the report of the committee on rules. Upon a viva voce vote, the negatives had it. A call of States was demanded, and being taken, resulted, yeas 276 nays 479. New York voted 48 iyes. 22 noes. The result was hailed with great applause.

Mr. Sharpe moved to substitute the minority, for the majority report which was Mr. Boutwell moved to amend the majority report by adding the following, and said committee, the National Republican committee, shall within 12 months prescribe a method or methods for the election of delegates in State conventions to the National convention to be held in 1884, and announce the same to the country, and State conventions shall issue credentials for that convention in conformity therewith.

Mr. Butterworth, of Ohio, moved an amendment by adding the following: Privided, That nothing in such rules or method shall be so construed as to prevent the several Congressional districts in the United States from selecting their own delegates to the National Convention. [Ap-

Mr. Boutwell accepted Mr. Butterworth's amendment.

Mr. Garfield hoped the amendment would be adopted, and it was so adopted by the convention, and their rules were dopted as a whole. On motion of Mr. Garfield the committee on resolutions were ordered to report. Resolutions were reported by Mr. Pierre-Resolutions were reported by Mr. Pierrepont, of New York.

After being reed, Mr. Barker, of Massachusetts, moved to amend by adding the fellowing: "The Republican party adhering to the principles affirmed by its last National Convention of respect for the constitutional rules governing the appointment to office, adopts the declaration of Desident Harges that refer in the civil President Hayes; that reform in the civil service shall be thorough, radical and complete, and to that end it demands the co-operation of the Legislative with the Executive Department of the govern-ment, and that Congress shall so legislate that these ascertained by proper practical tests shall admit to public service. That tenure of administrative offices, except those through which distinctive policy c those through which distinctive policy of the party in power shall be carried out, shall be permanent during good beha-viour, and that the power of removal for cause, with due responsibility for the good conduct of subordinates, shall accompany the power of appointment.

Mr. Anthony, of Illinois, moved an amendment which Mr. Barker accepted and the amendment of Mr. Barker was adopted, and then the resolution as amended was also adopted without the call of States.

The resolution, as adopted, omits the tenure of office clause, otherwise practically as originally introduced.

Mr. Creswell, of Missouri, moved to take a recess till 7 o'clock to-night, which was adopted.

THE CANDIDATES.

It is presumed that the names of all those who will be urged for nomination to the executive chair have been brought forward. Among these public opinion points definitely to two, Governor JARVIS and Judge FowlE; the rest of the list, though comprising many honored names, may be dismissed from consideration in this connection. A brief notice of these two, presented in one view-their antececedents, talents, mental characteristics and political careers—based partly upon observation and in part on conversations with those familiar with events while we were absent from the State, may be not unacceptable. In some particulars, there are points of similarity: both were born and brought up in Eastern North Carolina both are vet in the prime of manhood both are lawyers and have attained to high success in their profession. In all else heir relations are those of contrast rather of resemblance.

Both JARVIS and FOWLE are distinctively representative men. JARVIS is the representative of that class, so numerous under our institutions, who win eminence by their own exertions. The son of a Methodist preacher-a body of men whose self-sacrificing lives and devotion to the welfare of their fellow men put it out of their power to make provision for their families-his early life was one of poverty and struggle. His education was acquired by his own efforts. Alternately a worker and a learner; now at school and then earning the means to go to school: in these few words is presented an epitome of his life to the day on which he received his diploma from Randolph Macon College. The happier lot of FOWLE exempted his early years from the severe trials of his competitor. Competent means surrounded his childhood with comforts and laid open for his improvement the best institutions of learning in the land.

When the civil war broke out, both promptly volunteered. JARVIS served till the surrender at Appointatox, and came out with a frame shattered by bullets, and health broken by privation, over exertion and exposure. FowLE served for a shorter period and retired from the field to serve the State as a member of Assembly and as Adjutant-General of North Carolina.

The times excepted when war was fla grant, no part of our history was so full of painful experience as the first ten years after the civil war. In some respects it was worse than war. War threatened our Government and institutions: but the time referred to witnessed for while the overthrow of law and civil society. The period from the rise of Radicalism under what was called the Canby Constitution to its culmination under the Reconstruction acts in the constitution of 1868; the period of Radical ascendancy from 1868 to 1870, when Radicalism was driven from our legislative halls; the period during which the forces of Democracy were gathering strength for the struggle which resulted in the Convention of 1875; the period during which by process of legislative amendment the shackles which Radicalism had fixed upon us were broken and cast off: these periods comprehend those of greatest trial to our people in the civil history of our State, and those in which the highest qualities of our public men were called into requisition.

In the long and often disheartening contest with Radicalism which was then carried on by brave and able men, FOWLE. so far as we know, has left us nothing to record except a gallant but unsuccessful canvass for the Legislature in Radical Wake. He was, necessarily, but a spectator, though doubtless a deeply interested one, of the strife in the issue of which so much that was dear and valuable to us was involved. In the hot, bitter and, from the character of the opponent, often to the last degree disagreeable canvasses for the Legislature, he had slight participation; in the legislation which brought deliverance from Radical bondage, he thus had no part. To the crowning measure of relief, the Convention, he was opposed as a matter of policy, and counselled the people against it in the carefully prepared letter reprinted in these columns a few weeks ago. In 1876, he entered the canvass as Presidential Elector and made most effective speeches in every section of the State Such, so far as we are informed, is the ecord of Judge FOWLE. Any adequate ketch of JARVIS's services during the peri ods above mentioned would demand more pace than we have at disposal; they are herefore grouped together so as to afford slight view of them within the briefest ossible compass, with reference 1st, to he Legislature of 1868-'69; 2d, the lonvention: 3d. the great railroad move-

In the Assembly of 1868-69 every evil element which endangers good order and ood government mustered in strength. The egro who had just been enfranchised, and the carpet-bagger who controlled him, eigned supreme in our halls of legislation. The negro knew no more of legislation han he did of navigation or the calculaon of an eclipse; but the carpet-bagger jegislative jobbery and corruption. An opportunity was here offered for fraud on a gigantic scale, and the carpet-bagger rose to the occasion. Under the delusiveJUNE 6, 1880. pretext of developing the State, and fur nishing market facilities to our people, scheme was concocted of issuing bonds upon the faith of the State to the amoun of many millions for the ostensible pur pose of building railroads. Two sources of profit were open to the projectors of this scheme: 1st, The bonus which would be charged on the sale of the votes authori zing the issue of the bonds, for a few men had the Radical members absolutely at their will; 2d, the opportunity of appro priating the proceeds of the sales of th bonds when put on the market. This was easy to do; for as mat ters then stood the projectors of the scheme had but to speak the word to get themselves appointed presidents and directors of railroads, and thus have the disposal of the bonds in their own hands. How the credit of the State was ruined what immense booty was realized by the guilty confederates in this most flagitious cheme, is well known. All that we have now in view is to point attention to the part borne by JARVIS. The purpose of this foul conspiracy he penetrated at once, notwithstanding its specious disguise; but to oppose any successful resistance by votes to its consummation was impossible the Democratic members being a mere handful. All that he could do was to demonstrate that the passage of these acts involved a rate of taxation vastly in excess of what was allowed by the constitution and which would grind our people into the earth. This was done clearly, strongly faithfully, repeatedly. After exhausting every resource of reason, after vain enleavors to awaken a sense of duty to constituents, he found that the bill then before the House, the first in the fraudulent series, would pass in spite of everything that could be done by its opponents. Having no other resource, he now re sorted to the only expedient left him, viz: the chance of a rehearing of the bill by means of a motion to reconside on the next or some subsequent day. To such as may be unacquainted with parlia mentary law it may be well to explain that those only who vote for a bil can move its reconsideration; those who vote against it are not allowed to make this motion. The reason of the rule is obvious; if those who oppose and vote against a bill might move a reconsid eration, this method of opposition would be resorted to every day, and the whole session be consumed on a single bili; but when one who has voted for it moves its reconsideration, there is just ground for be lieving that the action of the House has been hasty and unwise and ought to be re viewed. To entitle himself to submit thi motion, and thus obtain a rehearing, after an interval had been allowed for reason and duty to resume their sway, he resorted to this parliamentary expedient and voted for the bill. When the opportunity arrived for making the motion, he was anticipated by another person and the motion itself was defeated. But he had now learned the sort of body he had to deal with that its members were bent upon carrying out the plot, and were deaf to all remonstrance; henceforth, by his speeches, by every device which parliamentary law sup plied, and by his votes, he redoubled his efforts to prevent other bills of the same sort, as they were brought forward in succession, from passing in the first instance.

> up from a plundered and outraged people. Trusting that that voice would not be disregarded by any Assembly however senseless and callous, JARVIS at the ensuing session introduced a bill repealing all railroad appropriations: this bill, after a long struggle-for the leaders clung to the prospect of further plunder with a death grip—was finally passed. The people of North Carolina who paid he crushing taxes levied under these bills. will never cease to remember the gallant fight made by JARVIS against their passage and the agency which he had in their Gov. JARVIS's vote on the first of these railroad bills has lately been the subject of some animadversion. This may be the result of misconception. He availed himself of a plain provision of parliamentary law to defeat, if possible, iniquitous legislation. How unreasonable would be any ensure grounded upon that vote, is made evident when we reflect that the same censure must be visited upon nearly all of the wisest and best men who have sat in our State and National Legislatures: for the vast majority have resorted to the same expedient to defeat what they regarded as a bad bill. The truth is, if JARVIS had not done what he did, his constituents and the State might have justly complained that he had failed of his duty. If, how-

In opposition to each of these, and they were many in number, he exhausted every resource that could be brought to bear.

All his efforts, however, were vain; the members of the Democratic party in this body were but few, and when it came to the vote they were swept away by overwhelming majorities. All the bills were passed, and the conspirators were triumphant. Nothing more could be done

2d. The Convention. The reconstruction measures fell with the most fatal effeet upon the Eastern part of the State on ecount of its great negro population. The effect was well described in the phrase then in the mouths of the negroes in that section: "The bottom rail is now on top." Intelligence, knowledge, virtue, business capacity, were every where thrust aside, and ignorance, stupidity, venality substituted in their stead. The county governments were in the hands of the negroes, and taxation for county purposes was im-posed without limit; and when any work was done for the county it was paid for at three or four prices to reward partisans and favorites. The office of magistrate was filled by scallawags and negroes who knew no law, and could not read it if the book was laid before them. Under such cir-

a mockery; men gave up their rights rather possessed an unrivalled skill in the arts of than go into those minor courts where brutal ignorance and manners of which a brute would be ashamed were installed in authority. The consciousness that they held the power in these local courts and at the polls affected most unfavorably the conduct of the negroes towards the whites the negroes took pleasure in exhibiting towards white people a demeanor insolent, defiant and aggressive. All this was hard to be borne; but the malice then uppermost n the breasts of the negro and his scallawag associates found vent in a way that put the climax on outrage. The poor white people_in counties where such men were County Commissioners, were sold by Dutch auction to negro masters. Thus in the plunder of property, in the insecurity of personal rights, in the exposure to insult and outrage, civil society was turned into a scheme of robbery, oppression and degrada-tion. In this condition of things was simply intolerable; if it had to continue, death was to be preferred. And yet for this state of things to remedy could be had except by a change in the constitution, and that could be accomplished fully only by a Convention. The calling of a Convention was, however. regarded as a hazardous measure, and lear, strong mind, and firm will-firm by nature, or made so by the discipline of lite—were needed to measure the hazard accurately. JARVIS espoused the Convention cause warmly: Fowle opposed it, doubting if it could succeed, if the West would yield what the East needed, and dreading the woful effects of failure. JAR-VIS had been accustomed from childhood to combat with difficulties and combat sucessfully; he had been trained to look ahead, to measure and weigh obstacles, and when the end justified to encounter them with dauntless neart. By force of circumstances his disposition had been moulded into a well-tempered combination of foresight, boldness and caution. FowLE's way of life as naturally inclined him to

"Rather bear those ills we have,

Than fly to others that we know not of." The fate of every public measure de-pends upon its reception by the people, and of this he who possesses the most intimate knowledge of the people will always be the best judge. Upon a point of this nature the advantage was altogether with JARVIS. His varied experience of life, his vast acquaintance with men of every condition, made him one of the best masters of public sentiment in the State. Fortunately for the State the Convention was called, and at no time were the tact and nice discernment of JARVIS exerted with more benefit to his party than in the organization of the Convention and at one or two very critical periods of its session. The mind shrinks from the contemplation of the misery, desolation and degradation which would be presented in the Eastern counties to-day if the Convention had never met.

The railroad matter is so recent, and familiar in all its details, that it is unnecessary to do more than refer to it. All that demands attention now is the sagacity, firmness and boldness with which the matter was managed. This question a short time ago hung over our party like a black cloud big with ruin. It threatened destruction not only to the party, but to any one who meddled with the combustible clements with which it was freighted. To meddle with it at all was what no mere politician would do; for with all such the science of politics is the science of self-advancement. It was just such a thing as a statesman would do; for a statesman has no thought of self: he lives and labors for his country. With a heroism as daring as it was quiet, JARVIS grasped this formidable question, and under his skilful handling it become as harmless as the thunder cloud when its fiery fluid has been drawn off by the potent conductor. It was a perilous feat and nobly achieved; but if it had miscarried, he would have sunk for a time at least like a plummet of lead in the water. FOWLE approved the call of the Legislature and the sale of the road, but his position did not make it necessary for him to take part in assisting the passage of the act of sale.

A word or two on the mental characteristics of the two candidates. These differ widely. JARVIS is cool, self-possess ed, reflective, sound in his judgments, safe in his conclusions. Fowle is warm, impulsive, quick in his judgments and naturally sometimes repents them. JARVIS looks at things in their practical bearing, in their effect upon the community and the State. FOWLE does not overlook these, but he contemplates them primarily in that view which will afford most scepe to the orator. JARVIS knows no use for language except to convey his ideas; he employs plain words, words familiar to all men, and which car ry his meaning home to the general understanding: Fowle's meaning, too, is clear, but he loves the pomp of diction, tropes, and many-hued rhetoric. JARVIS goes straight to his goal; he seldom makes use of an illustration, and he pre sents his subject in clear, striking relief FowLE approaches his subject circuit-ously; he ranges the whole field of literature for illustrations and allusions with which his discourse is sometimes encumbered so that the strong body of it is ob scured by the decorative drapery. One goes away from hearing JARVIS with a mind stored with facts, food for thought and reflection: from hearing FOWLE, some times, with the facts forgotten in wonde at the oratorical display. Each has attained high excellence in his own style, and each will always have eager listeners.

These are our notions of the two men now foremost in the minds of the people One of them will be our candidate for Governor. From either we are sure of vigorous canvass, and either will deserve the heartiest support from every man in North Carolina who calls himself a Demo-

OUR Chapel Hill correspondent finishe up her Commencement work in this morning's NEWS, and it is done well as is all her handiwork. It should have been printed vesterday, but the package did not reach us until noon of yesterday, and the lack of it had been supplied in the morning by the very interesting report kindly written by a gentleman who returned from Chapel Hill y Friday's train.

THE CHICAGO Convention adjourned last night to 10 o'clock to-morrow, when cumstances justice came to be worse than ballotting will begin.

RESIGNATION OF COL. POLK.

Cel. L. L. Polk has tendered his resignation as Commissioner of Agriculture, and it was accepted by the Executive Committee on Friday.

Col. Polk has ably and faithfully conducted the Department, which he had uccessfully organized for usefulness, and his loss will be felt by the whole State. The Executive Committee, in accepting his resignation at his urgent request, express their deep sense of his services to the Department and the cause of agriculture, and their regret that his determination to quit official life to engage in other busiess is final.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY conventions were held yesterday in Guilford, Iredell, Johnston, Rockingham, Randolph, Union and Wayne. Telegrams to THE NEWS inform us that Guilford, Johnston and Wayne send uninstructed delegates. Iredell instructed for JARVIS and ROBINSON; for W. P. CALDWELL for Attorney-General; Dr. WORTH for Treasurer; THOS. A. NICHOLSON for Auditor; THEO. F. KLUTZ for Elector: T. S. TUCKER for State Senate. Wayne delegates are about equally divided between JARVIS and FOWLE, with some supporters of a third man. The other counties named above, we suppose, send uninstructed delegates. as in the event of instructions THE NEWS would have had telegrams from them. So far 26 counties have instructed dele gates; 21 for JARVIS, 5 for FOWLE.

THE New York Times foots up the Chicago delegates as 300 for GRANT: 272 for BLAINE: 113 for SHERMAN: 35 for EDMUNDS: 35 unclassed. The BLAINE and SHERMAN men control the situation, and GRANT's friends fight off a surrender of SHERMAN to BLAINE.

PRESIDENT BATTLE, of the University s surely to be congratulated. Look over THE NEWS' reports and mark how his sons stand in every department. Happy is the father who has a quiver full of steady, studious and talented sons,

> The Chicago Platform. [New York Herald, 4th inst]

Mr. Edwards Pierrepont and the Plat form Committee are at it hot and heavy o-night. The result of their labors is short, sharp and decisive platform. The document begins with a brief report of the administration of the Republican party in the past twenty years. It recites its sunpression of a rebellion which called into the field nearly a million men so subvert the national authority; its reconstruction of the Union with freedom instead of slavery as its corner stone; its transforma- elders who remember former times will tion of four millions of beings from the not admit that he can as yet hold a candle likeness of things to the rank of citizens its relief of Congress from the infamous work of hunting fugitive slaves: its raising of the currency from thirty-eight per cent to the par of gold and its restoration to a solid basis, the payment in coin for all national obligations, and the gift of a currency absolutely good and equally good in all parts of our extended country. Railways have increased from 31,000 miles in 1860 to 82,000 in 1879. The foreign trade has increased from $700,000,000 to $1,100,000,000 and the exports from $20,000,000 less than the imports in 1860 o $200,064,000 more than the imports in 1879. It then continues to felicitate the party financially in sundry ways, mainly industrial and financial, and asks for the continued confidence and support of the people. After this it submits a series of ffirmations concerning the monetary solidty of the nation; the nationality of the Inited States in contradistinction to a State confederation, the duty of the general government in respect of popular education; a recommendation that State Legislatures be forbidden to enact any law respecting an establishment of religion and also the appropriation of public funds to the support of sectarian schools; the belief that revenues should be raised as to favor American labor; that no more land grants shall be made to railways, and that polygamy, the twin barbarity of slavery, must die; a welcome to all emigrants except the Chinese, who come to enjoy the privilege of our country without participating in the obligations of citizenship, and calling on the government to take cognizance of the troubles of the Pacific coast ; a tribute to the purity and patriotism of Rutherford B. Hayes in peace and war, and to his efficient, honest and courteous fulfilment of the public busines. It then charges on the democratic party the habitual sacrifice of patriotism and justice to a supreme and insatiable lust of office and patronage, and details, though in general erms, its course of unscrupulous grasping for place and power at whatever cost. closes as follows :-"And we affirm it to be the duty and purpose of the Republican party to use all legal means to restore all the States of this Union to the most perfect harmony which may be practicable, and we submit it to the practical sensible people of the United States to say whether it would not be dangerous to the dearest interests of our country at this time to surrender the administration of the national government to a party which seeks to overthrow the existing policy under which we are so prosperous, and thus bring distrust and confusion where there is now order, canfidence and hope."

Hans Growyost, a worthy German farmer, who has been a life-long resident of Berks County, has a shrewish wife, who has long rendered his life anything but a couch of roses. One day not long ago she, in a fit of pique, picked up her duds and left him, vowing never to come back. The news went around among the neighbors—you know how intelligence of all kinds does travel in the country—and at night several of them, of whom I was one, went to condole with Hans. He sat on his front stoop puffing away at his pipe.
"Hans," I remarked, "I pity you." "My boy," replied the honest Dutchman, as he disturbedly knocked out the ashes of his pipe, "you vas right. She has shust come

State University Commencement. [Reported for THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

CHAPEL HILL, June 4th, 1880. I wrote yesterday's dispatch at 3 o'clock in the morning, and am not responsible for any errors of fact or of judgment therein expressed. The soberest people round Chapel Hill may become so involved in the commencement whirl of Wednesday and Thursday, as to know really little or nothing about what is done on either day. Thursday has been eminently bright and eautiful and commencement-like, with the further advantage of being decidedly cool. Visitors began to come in from the country soon after six a. m., and at ten, the hapel and campus were crowded; when the procession had formed and passed in, the hall was a jam from floor to galleries.

And what a pretty and inspiring scene it was! Fewer ladies from abroad were in attendance than usual, it was said, yet the eye did not miss them—the chapel was crowded as it ever is, and there were many more distinguished gentlemen visitors than usual. The University still, as it has always done, and always will, continues to attract a class of our citizens who as body are not seen elsewhere, and this fact alone would give its gatherings distinction. Among the dignitaries who crowded the rostrum and the area in front were Hon. P. C. Cameron, Gov. Jarvis Judge Merrimon, Gen. Leach, Dr. Kille brew, of Tenn., Dr. H. H. Tucker, Mai Jno. W. Graham, Bart Fuller, Esq., Col Saunders, Superintendent Scarborough. Dr. Grissom, Maj. Bingham, and the Fne ulty of the Bingham's School, Col. Kenan. Gen. W. E. Hill, W. J. Yates, Esq., Gen. Cox, R. H. Battle, Jr., Julian Carr, Rev. Mr. Rumple of Salisbury, Rev. J. M. Atkinson, Rev. F. C. Woodward, Rev. A. D. Betts, A. T. Davidson, Esq. Jos. B. Batchelor, Esq., F. H. Busbee, Esq., Maj. Jno. W. Moore, Julius A. Gray, Esq., Haywood Merritt, Esq., Rev. D. A. Long, Dr. R. H. Lewis, Rev. J. E. C. Smedes, Maj. W. B. Lynch, P. B. Means, Esq., Jos. Williams, Esq., Col. W. T. Blackwell, Mayor Link, of Durham, Prof. Jno. E. Kelly, Eugene Morehead, Esq. B. A. Capehart, Esq., Capt. Jas. A. Graham, &c., &c., &c., besides a number of later graduates, who are already beginning to follow the old, old custom, and come up from year to year to salute the institution, and mark and rejoice in its advance.

* * It does not seem so very long ago since I saw young Ransom's father standing on that stage to receive his dip loma in presence of Jas. K. Polk, then President of the United States, and his cabinet. What a proud day that was for Gov Swain! Yet his kind face looked down from the chapel wall this morning not less benignantly than then. The sons and grandsons of those he trained here and sent out to serve North Carolina still throng these ancient haunts, and give the University its own peculiar historic value and interest. Young Mr. Ransom has talent, and has studied well, and graduated with the approval of the Faculty, yet with all deference to the Faculty, and to the young ladies who smile upon him, we o his father, as his father was in 1847. Neither can young Haywood, or Slade, or Battle, or Phillips, by any means, eclipse what that stage recalls of their fathers; and yet I have never seen there a finer looking set of young men, on the whole, than the class of 1880. And the unusually thoughtful and elevated class of topics se lected by them for discussion shows that they are not likely to do discredit to their names or to their training. They spoke well, seriously, and like men. The University is to be congratulated on sending out a band so distinguished for scholarship, deportment, and every grace of early

Your reporter will not make any invidi ous comparisons between the speeches. They were all good and all highly commended, and the bouquets showered on the young orators from fair hands were real narvels of color and beauty and fragance. The only fault lay perhaps in the direction of their length. The exercises coull not be concluded before dinner, and after a recess to recruit exhausted energies, we reassembled at 3 o'clock in the afternoon to hear the report and distribution of prizes, degrees, &c., &c., as follows:

the saltatory exercises in the Library.

If we were inclined to quarrel with dancing as a pursuit, we would make our point right here—that the minds of young people once abandoned to this species of nusement are impatient of any control in its indulgence. It becomes paramount to every other consideration and, as in the present instance, is pursued without regard to the claims of time, place or circumstance. To its fascinations are resigned all higher enjoyments of taste or intellect. To dance the German is far better than to listen to commencement orations. I cannot congratulate young people who have reached this conclusion and act upon it.

The number of honorary degrees conferred becomes less and less every year and it is well that it is so. The D. D. conferred on Rev. Mr. Atkinson, of Ral eigh, and on Rev. Mr. McGilvary, Mis sionary these many years to Siam, were particularly well bestowed. Mr. McGilvary is a North Carolinian in every sense of the word. His children have been sent here to be educated, and he himself ever turns with love to his native State. He will pay us a visit this summer, and this compliment from his Alma Mater will be especially grateful.

More phaetons and fine horses were flying round the campus and the streets of the village than ever before, and the general hilarity and enjoyment were never more apparent. An unusual number of our neighbors from the country were present. Col. Blackwell, of Durham, who generally contrives to come in ahead, sent up his Durham company with a band of music and a fine dinner, to be enjoyed in the grove. All things, weather included conspired to render the whole occasion most felicitous and enjorable. The Alumni Association had its meet ing, but I have not lea ned that anything was done of special moment. Mr. Came ron made a very good little speech, partly in reply to Judge Merrimon's denunciatory and damnatory view of North Carolina present aspect and future prospects. Mr Cameron is always heard with pleasure. He speaks like a gentleman, a man of education, and a true hearted son of the soil without a particle of spread-eagleism, or clap-trap of any sort. He speaks with feeling too, and we listen to him with entire sympathy. We look at his white hair with reverence and pray that we may long be favored to hear him stand up for North Carolina, gallantly and successfully. Judge Merrimon tells us some home truths-and it is well we should know the truth-but when man or woman begins to scold, facile descensus. It is a down hill expedition all the way for speaker and hearer, an I when we are all lanced at the bottom, no very great good to accrue is discernible. The Historical Sccie v of the State did not receive even mention that your reporter heard of. But during the day a box of books and pamphlets for the Society sent by W. S. Pearson, of Morganton, was received by the Secretary of the Society Some of these were MSS. of value, present ed by lady members of the Avery family. Let the ladies come to the front, and the Historical Society will very probably begin to hold its head up. Our thanks are due to Mr. Pearson for his active zeal in the

Now as to the ball, Mr Editor, I do not believe you are likely to afford me another column to describe it. Let me say in three lines that it went off with all the brilliance, and gay and airy delight that ever distinguish commencement balls. That noble library is the finest place in North Carolina to dance in. The managers performed their part to every one's satisfaction-the ladies were dazzling-their dresses were charming. A young lady from Tarboro. a young lady from Raleigh, and a young lady from Washington City were the three your reporter heard most highly commended. No initials will be given, nor any details of pink satin, or blue silk, or diamond earrings. Let Jenkins disport elsewhere than in the DAILY NEWS. The sun was shining when the ball broke up. As I write the carriages are rolling Durhamward. The band is gone. Commencement is over. In conclusion, let me compliment Mr. Frank Dancy of Tarboro, Chief Marshal, and his efficient subs. Admirable order was preserved throughout. [Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.] HYDE COUNTY, June 3rd, 1880. EDITOR NEWS :- We have seen the mention of many candidates for the position of Auditor in the columns of your paper, and we have noticed carefully the different claims of each candidate, and as yet we have seen the mention of none whose services for the Democratic party and for the people at large of the State of North Carolina so much entitle them to the place as those of Major Thomas Sparrow, of Washington, N. C. Let those who were in the Legislature when Holden was impeached say whether or not he has done efficient work. You will find a hearty response of yes from all.

Major Sparrow is a modest man and would never ask the people of his State and his party to give him anything, but his friends are bound and determined to have the State do something for him. He has served the people in this State in every manner, shape and form. He went through a four years struggle of the late civil war. He has worked in every campaign for the party since that time. EDITOR NEWS :- It was reported or the streets Friday that the "drys" would get up a petition asking the commissioners not to grant licenses to retail liquor in the city, as the law was changed from "shall" to "may" grant license to persons proving a good character, &c.

The law school of Messrs. Dillard and Dick has closed and about ten young gentlemen will be in your city from here next week to be examined before the Supreme Court upon an application for license to plead law. It is said that students of these gentlemen reflect the well earned reputation of their tutors as being well learned in the law, and also able to impart it to others. The grand testimonial concert, tendered to Prof. Bach, by the Greensboro Quar-tette Club, on Friday night, was quite a treat to the lovers of music. The selections were splendid, and the rendition excellent. The large and select audience seemed to appreciate the music very much, if the numerous encores indicate appreciation. The Quartette Club is composed of clever a set of young gentlemen as it is possible to find in any community. They were assisted on Friday night by Mrs. Nicholson and Mrs. Owen, two of the best female voices in the State. The piano solos, by Prof. Bach, were just splendid, and show that gentleman to be a professor of great musical talent.

Dr. Patterson at Oxford. [Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

OXFORD, June 3. EDITOR NEWS :- As I sat, Mr. Editor, this morning, in the elegant chapel of the Oxford Orphan Asylum, and listened to the address of Rev. Geo. Patterson to the students of the Horner School, my mind instinctively ran back over similar scenes which it had been my pleasure to witness. Before me stood Waddell, and Fowle, and Engelhard, and Hoge, and Steele, and Grant, orators at our honored University; but in all that long list there was but one. and he no man surpasses, who could approach our inimitable orator.

"The Ideals of Youth." "Life." said the doctor, is not to young eyes what it seems to be. They think it long. It is short. They think it full of happiness. It is full of cares, disappointments and gloomy shadows. What is the Ideal of Youth? Wealth? Alas too often. Does it satisfy the mind? The man who poker out his miserable existence in the midst of luxury, answers No. Now what is best Nature's best gifts are air, sunshine and water, and they are the freest.

Judge Fowle at Ronoke Island.

[Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.] WAKE COUNTY, June 5, 1880.

The Signal has recently intimated that Lt. Col. Fowle did not act bravely at Roanoke Island.

In a letter from Capt. W. D. Jones, 31st N. C. T., to the N. C. Standard of March 19th 1862, replying to a letter written by a correspondent signing himself "Bohemian," which criticised the conduct of the N. C. troops, he says:

"I don't think I ever saw any one more cool and self possessed than our commander Lt. Col. Fowle; during the fight he mingled freely with the men, and his coolness gave them more confidence than ever in him as their leader, while Maj. Yeates, in his usual good-humored way would say something to cheer the men. When the companies from the engage-ment came through our ranks in retreat, for a moment there was a little confusion among us, but as soon as Lt. Col. Fowle's voice was heard ordering every man to stand and cover the retreat of their brave comrades who had so gallantly defended the entrenchments, they rallied and stood like men until the order was communicated to us to fall back. Col. Fowle ordered the companies to march off in regular order, and saw the last company off before he mounted his horse and joined the retreat."

And in the Standard of March 26th there appears an extract from another letter written by "Bohemian" and published in the Richmond Dispatch in which it is "My only wonder was that such a panic should have seized the struggling band of soldiers I saw half running, half walking, in a very frightened manner towards the upper end of the island, and which I was old was the 31st. Col. Fowle intimates they were some other men, and as I had to depend entirely upon hearsay as to who they were, I have no reason to doubt it, and more especially as I know Col. Fowle to be a reliable gentleman and a brave and intrepid officer."

He has only to draw one card to fill. Grant is trying to bluff on ace high. Edmunds and Sherman are eachholding one card in the expectation of drawing four others of the same kind." Exchange Fiend-whenever you wan my advice don't hesitate to ask for it. Newspaper Man-Thanks; I would like some advice just now. "All right: I shall only be too happy "Can you tell me how in the world ! can induce you to leave without hurting your feelings?" "I don't think you need much advice or that subject."

He retires in indignation and with mos of the exchanges. And now our brother Bailey will please tell us about this. Was he the man thus picked up during his late trip to yankee-land? "A Baptist minister, fishing near Cape Cod, catches a strange fish and asks of the skipper: What manner of fish is this, my good nan? It has a curious appearance. "Yaas; only been 'round here this year."

"What do you call it?" "We call 'em Baptists!"

"Why so?" "Cause they spile so soon after they ome out of the water." Of the late Bishop Ames, the following necdote is related: While presiding over certain conference in the West, a member began a tirade against the universities and education, thanking God that he had never been corrupted by contact with a college. After proceeding thus for a few question, "Do I understand that the brother thanks God for his ignorance?" "Well, yes," was the answer, "you can put it that way if you want to." "Well, all I have to say," said the Bishop in his sweet musical tones, "all I have to say is, that the brother has a great deal to thank God for." A shrewd man can always find a good reason. When a Bavarian peasant presented himself to his clergyman and demanded a license to marry, the good man said:- "Why, Peter, it is only eight weeks since I buried your wife, and do you come to me so soon with a new one?" "Ah," rep ied the peasant, "I have been suffering terribly from the affliction which has fallen on my house, and I heard the Herr Doctor say the other day that if a man had a pain in one part of his body the best way to cure it was to produce another pain. He called it counter irritation, I believe. Now, your reverence, I am in just that condition, and I want to produce a counter irritation, that is all."

Hair Worms. [From the New York World.] When the rustic youth, says Dr. Andrew Wilson, loitering along some lane comes to a standstill to contemplate with awe and wonder the spectacle of a mass of the familiar "hair-eels" or "hair-worms" wriggling about in a pool, he plods on his way fully convinced that he has just witnessed the results of the transformation of some horse hairs into living creatures. And the theory of such transformation is often accepted by persons of considerable culture. The hair-worms certainly pre-sent the appearance of long, delicate black hairs, which move about with great rapidity amid the mud of pools and ditcher. These worms, in the early stages of their existence, inhabit the bodies of insects, and may be found coiled up within the grasshopper, which thus gives shelter to a guest exceeding many times the length of the body of its host. Sooner or later the hair-worm, or Gordius, leaves the body of the insect and lays its eggs in water. From each egg a little creature armed with minute hooks is produced, and this young hair-worm burrows into the body of some insect-there to repeat the history of its parent. Such is the authentic life of the hair-worm.

DIED:

BROUGHTON.—In this city last night at 10:30, WILLIAM GASTON, infant son of Z. T. and Mirra J. Broughton, aged 6 months and 20 days. Funeral will take place at the residence of the parents on Davie between Wilmington and Blount Streets, this Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

One Was a Little Thin.

(From the Reidsville Times.)

At a party the other night in this county Miss Sallie Toles and Miss Rebecca Bowles stood looking themselves over at the mirror before en'ering the parlor. Miss Sallie was a lovely plump blonde and knew it, and always wore very low neck and went altogether bare armed; it was only a pity her father was poor in purse. Miss Rebecca had nice sloping shoulders and always wore her dress low enough to show them, but she was inclined to be bony, though her father had plenty of money. Sally was full front of the mirror and Rebecca a little to one side. Said Sally: "Beck, I've got on a new pair of corsets; do you think hey make my dress too low?" Now that was a fair question and kindly

But Rebecca, tossing her curls haughtily, replied: "Law! child! I didn't even know you were in low dress!" Still she looked as cutting as a dyspeptic fence rail, while Sallie went bouncing in more pleased with herself than ever. And all because one was a little thin and the other round and plump. Isn't it a shame?

"What is the worst thing about riches?" asked the Sunday-school superintendent.
And the new boy in the bad class under the gallery, who only came in last Sunday, stood up and said: "Their scarcity." And in his confusion the superintendent told the school to rise and sing "Don't be weary, children."

We call special attention to our Improved Portable Engine, for Agricultural and other purposes. The Boilers of our Agricultural Engines are provided with our Patent Premium Spark Extinguisher, a device by which the sparks are forced to pass downward over a reservoir of water and effectually extinguished without the use of wire gauze. Ours is the only arrangement of this kind which affords free access to the boiler tubes for cleaning from each end. The officers of a large number of the best
